Review: licenses that may not be needed

Not counted in the recoverable total. Some of these legitimately need a license, so check each one before removing it.

Room mailbox: Room or equipment mailbox with a paid license. Resource mailboxes usually don't need one.

Offboarding: what the leavers still hold

Not counted again in the recoverable total - these licenses are already in it. This is the per-person list of what is still outstanding.

Account	Reason	Licenses held	Groups	Mailbox
Jordan Lee jordan.lee@contoso.com	Disabled 2025-11-02	ENTERPRISEPREMIUM	6 groups	still a user mailbox
Priya Shah priya.shah@contoso.com	Inactive never/unknown	ENTERPRISEPREMIUM	3 groups	still a user mailbox
Wei Chen wei.chen@contoso.com	Disabled 2025-08-22	ENTERPRISEPACK	none	shared
Marco Ruiz marco.ruiz@contoso.com	Inactive 2025-09-14	ENTERPRISEPACK	unknown	still a user mailbox

4 of 4 account(s) still have something outstanding: 3 with a mailbox nobody converted to shared, 2 still in at least one group (1 unknown).
A shared mailbox under 50 GB with no archive does not need a license, so converting one is often what turns a dormant seat into a saving you can keep.

Methodology

A user is counted as dormant when the account is disabled, or has no activity in the last 90 days. Activity was determined via Microsoft 365 usage reports. Prices are public list-price estimates (USD/user/month) and should be adjusted to your actual contract for exact figures. Guest accounts are users of type Guest. Mailbox types, sizes and archives come from Microsoft 365's mailbox usage report, which can take a long time to list a mailbox nobody has used - weeks, in our own testing - so its type is shown as unknown rather than guessed. A mailbox over 50 GB or with an archive needs a license and isn't counted as a saving. The offboarding list covers the same dormant accounts, showing what each still holds; its licenses are already in the recoverable total and are not counted twice. Group counts are each account's direct group and directory-role memberships. This scan is read-only and stores no tenant data.
